

Canadian Higher Education UDL Collective

Who We Are

The Canadian Higher Education UDL Collective is a group of post-secondary educators from across Canada who are looking to learn and share all things Universal Design for Learning (UDL).

Collective Goals

The Canadian Higher Education UDL Collective is aiming to:

- Create an open and inviting space for Canadian UDL implementers in higher education to share and learn.
- Apply UDL to issues of diversity, access, inclusion and equity.
- Further the inclusion of UDL-based research in the scholarship of teaching and learning.

How to Learn with Us

We have a wealth of resources provided by our members. You can access these resources by joining the Canadian Higher Education UDL Collective (see the instructions at the bottom of this page). Once you are a group member, you will be able to access a collaborative resource document and view upcoming UDL in higher education professional development opportunities.

We also have regular meetings to share, problem solve and support each other through our UDL journeys. Meeting times and topics are communicated through our group listserv and we hope you will join us!

How to Share with Us

Do you have a fantastic UDL resource with a higher education application? Please join the Canadian Higher Education UDL Collective (again, see the instructions at the bottom of this page) to gain access to the collaborative UDL resource document. You can then add your great resource for us to include. Once received, the resource will be added to the Collective's resource bank.
